Atoka Golf & Country Club

The history of the Atoka Golf & Country Club dates back to 1987 when Cranberry opened its golf course. Carved out of the picturesque southern Georgian Bay landscape and surrounded by indigenous wildlife and natural vegetation, the Atoka Golf & Country Club has the distinction of being appointed Canada's first Audubon Society certified golf course, and was subsequently awarded the prestigious Environmental Stewardship Award. Panoramic vistas of the famed Blue Mountains provide the backdrop for this 6,704-yard course that combines scenic beauty with golfing challenge. Accurate iron shots are required on tree-lined fairways to avoid strategic bunkers and water hazards that guard approaches to meticulously manicured greens. The Atoka Club is in its 13th year even though private membership dates back prior to 1995.
